

Marx Now

Dr. Jennifer Dorothy Lee, Professor Art History, Theory and Criticism, SAIC

Please note: Due to the not always accessible sources, the quotation below may vary from the one read in the video.

“Man is a species-being, not only because in practice and in theory he adopts the species (his own as well as those of other things) as his object, but – and this is only another way of expressing it – also because he treats himself as the actual, living species; because he treats himself as a universal and therefore a free being.”

(Estranged Labour, Section XXIV)

<https://www.marxists.org/archive/marx/works/1844/manuscripts/labour.htm>

www.goethe.de

GOETHE INSTITUT

Sprache. Kultur. Deutschland.