The Goethe-Institut is the Federal Republic of Germany's cultural institute and is active worldwide. We encourage international cultural exchange and promote the study of German abroad. The Goethe-Institut sees itself as an Institution with a European mission. It stands for a vision of European integration, propounds a common European cultural space based on multicultural diversity and autonomy, and is committed to a corresponding set of values embracing inclusiveness, openness, generosity and justice.

The Trinity Access Programmes support people from areas with low progression rates to higher education to reach their full educational potential. TAP's mission is to work in partnership across the education sector with students, teachers, families, communities and businesses to widen access and participation at third-level of under-represented groups.

The Mercator Foundation is one of the largest private foundations in Germany and is active both nationally and internationally. Through its work it strives for a society characterized by openness to the world, solidarity and equal opportunities. In this context it concentrates on strengthening Europe; increasing the educational success of underrepresented children and young people; driving forward climate change mitigation and promoting science and the humanities.

Freiraum – A European Project

"Freiraum" is a pan-European project by the Goethe-Institut which runs from 2017 to 2019. Its focal point is the concept of freedom which, ever since the Enlightenment, has been vitally relevant to European cultural history and the European sense of identity. As part of Freiraum, the Goethe-Institut Dublin is looking at economic inequality and the limits to freedom in Europe. Within this context, this project seeks to build on a new partnership between the Trinity Access Programmes and Dublin City Council to address inequalities in access to higher education in Dublin's city centre. This project aims to empower students in areas underrepresented at third level by focusing on increasing awareness and engagement in the community with the creative arts.

meet!-Mercator Europa Tour

meet!-Mercator Europa Tour is a project by Stiftung Mercator that aims to strengthen social diversity in the fields of international cooperation and international affairs. Each year, meet! invites young adults from the Ruhr area in Germany, who are the first in their family to graduate from high school or attend university, to experience Europe and to explore current international issues. Through in-depth trainings, cultural events and discussions meet! prepares and encourages them to engage in European affairs, to seek international career opportunities and to get involved in the world of intercultural exchange.

Dr Rónán Smith
Head of Outreach

Ronan is the head of outreach for TAP. He moved from his previous position in Trinity College School of Physics in 2014 to focus on working with primary and second level students from disadvantaged communities as well as undergraduates in Trinity College Dublin. He studied general science in Trinity College Dublin specialising in experimental physics and completed a PhD in Nanoscience in 2013 focusing on the fabrication of two-dimensional materials and their use in green energy applications. He loves playing football, watching football and reading about football in that order. He very much enjoys a good book or film, playing guitar/ukulele and fishing. He also cycles quite a bit and despite being 32 has never learned to drive a car!

Daniel McFarlane
Project Officer at TAP schools team

Daniel McFarlane works with the TAP's schools team. His work is focused on the student experience and engagement with arts and culture based forms of education. This work finds itself focused on specific projects with the Goethe-Institut Irland, project officer of College Awareness Week and the preliminary work of creating community-based mentors for the Greater Dublin Region. Daniel studied English Literature and Film Studies which has helped him through the mixed-media work he does for TAP. When he's not chasing emails, Daniel finds himself drinking too much coffee, buying books he hasn't the time to read and scrolling through Twitter and Instagram on his phone. He hopes to one day find the perfect hashtag and strongest cup of coffee in the world.

Stiftung Mercator | Team

Teresa Spancken

Project Manager

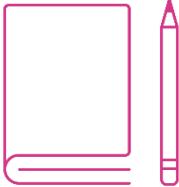

Teresa works as Project Manager at Stiftung Mercator's Centre for International Programmes. Her projects deal with all kinds of international challenges: from finding new innovative tools for diplomacy and keeping checks on AI empowered weapons to promoting young talents in the field of international affairs. Incapable of staying at one place for too long, Teresa completed her B.A. in Political Science at the Universities of Aberdeen, Heidelberg and Kyushu (Japan). She holds a M.A. in Political Management, Public Policy and Public Administration. Teresa loves to travel – either by taking the plane or by reading books - and enjoys it most when she can take others along on the journey.

Clara Dewes

Trainee

Clara works as a trainee at Stiftung Mercator within a trainee programme involving several German foundations. Clara studied economics in Tübingen and Cologne and spent semesters abroad in Bogotá and Strasbourg. Clara loves spending time on her green balcony and is passionate about exploring the remote corners of Germany on her racing bike. If she does not run or cycle around, Clara plays the cello, cooks for and with friends and goes to flea markets to buy things she really does not need.

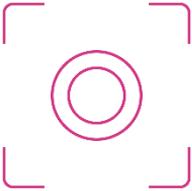

CREATIVE WRITING, Rachael Hegarty

Rachael Hegarty was born seventh child of a seventh child in Dublin and reared on the Northside. She was educated by the Holy Faith Sisters in Finglas, the U. Mass. Bostonians in America, the M.Phillers at Trinity and by the Ph.D. magicians at Queens. She lived, studied and worked in Boston and Japan for ten years. She is widely published in national and international journals and broadcast on RTE Radio. Rachael was the winner of the Francis Ledwidge Prize and Over the Edge New Writer of the Year. She was also shortlisted for the Hennessey New Irish Writer and Ver Poetry Prizes and highly commended for the Forward Poetry Prizes. She is an educator for the Trinity Access Programme and CDET B but reckons she learns more from her students than she can ever teach.

DRAMA&PERFORMANCE, Ciara Manning

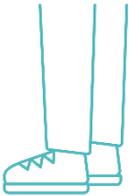

Trinity Access Programme and Trinity College Drama Studies graduate, Ciara Manning will devise a workshop that interrogates the spatial entrapment of people and the issues society endures. Manning's dramaturgical work has recently engaged with Ireland's fight for women's reproductive freedom. Manning hopes to grant disenfranchised people a voice and a platform for performance through her work.

STREET PHOTOGRAPHY, Humans of Dublin

HoD will curate a workshop to engender participants with the correct tools to accurately capture space and its inhabitants. HOD takes a simple street-photography premise of taking pictures of people and asking them questions.

INSTAWALK

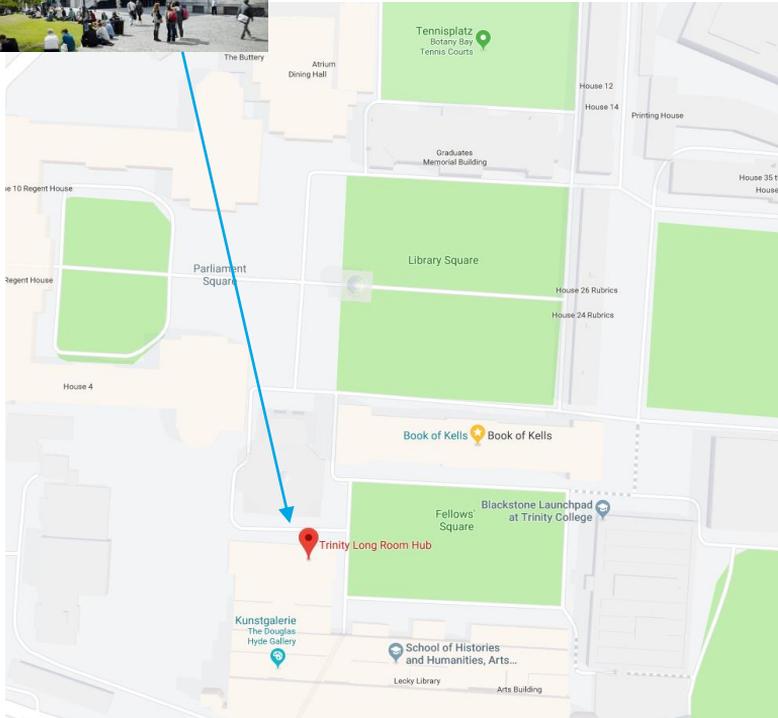

Students will take to the streets of Dublin to capture the space with their new street-photography skills. Students will break into three groups to use their Freiraum sensibilities to capture the spaces and people of Dublin. They will visit three geographically-specific area of Dublin: the Touristic area of Temple Bar. The business and financial area of the IFSC and Dublin Docklands and the historic Merrion and Fitzwilliam Square. These differences in location are to ensure a creative distinction between the photography captured. German students will be paired with Irish students so that each group understand where they need to go.

Trinity Access Programmes

Trinity Access Students are a rare breed indeed. We come in all shapes and sizes and much like snowflakes or clouds, no two are the same! We've got students from as far as Mauritius and the Middle East. We've got students as close as 10 minutes away from Trinity's front gate. Some of our students study zoology, physics, business, Law, English and many more. We have so many students, studying so many subjects even we forget what they're up to every so often! Our TAP students taking part in Freiraum x meet! are award winning actors, social activists, writers, singers, artists and hell raisers. So why not ask about their subjects, lives on and off campus and general interests. With these two amazing groups meeting, conversation on the day won't run dry.
