The event is themed The Food Revolution and will showcase educational films from around the globe. Such films will tackle topics about the relationship between food, our planet, as well as the future of humanity.

This Science Film Festival promises an educational exploration into the world of food, and how it connects to us and our environment. Issues relating to the fast growth of the global population, as well as pressing nutritional matters will also be highlighted in the short science films that will be screened in the festival.
