Our blended learning exam preparation course offers an excellent way to prepare for the A Examination at British schools or colleges.

Feedback from previous courses shows that students could improve their examination results, gained the desired marks and could study the subject of their choice or were able to obtain an Erasmus-grant to study on an exchange program in Germany.

Opportunities for online exchange, collaboration and communication have never been greater, and as a result students spend more and more of their free time connecting with each other in online communities. We have created a fantastic A-Level Exam Preparation course that recognizes this fact and place German learning within a contemporary context.

Blended learning brings together the best aspects of the internet and enables students to learn in the online contexts that are most conducive for learning together in groups, offering them the opportunity to prepare for their exams according to their demands and needs. Students can choose how intense they would like to work on various Modules, all of which contain exam relevant topics.

How does the course work?

- 5X Classroom lessons - participants meet at the Goethe-Institut London
- Online phases between classroom lessons provide continuous support from your tutor and your group in completing individual exercises and group activities which amount to two to three hours per week.
