

INFOHAUS

At Infohäuser, newcomers to Germany can get their bearings in their new country, find useful information and use the web portal “Mein Weg nach Deutschland” (My Path to Germany).

Infohäuser are a starting point for these new arrivals, providing information about life in Germany as well as German language exercises and local support. Infohäuser also provide a space for networking and casual conversation.

You can find the locations of the Infohäuser here:

About the project

Infohäuser are part of the Goethe-Institut’s “Ankommen in Deutschland” (Arriving in Germany) project. Co-funded by the Asylum, Migration and Integration Fund (AMIF), this project provides support for new arrivals from non-EU countries who have come to Germany for professional or private reasons. The web portal “Mein Weg nach Deutschland” serves as a basis for the project.

Living in Germany

Are you a new arrival with lots of questions about Germany? You will find information in 30 different languages here about living and working in Germany. Or listen to the information in German.

You will find useful information to help you find your feet in Germany on the infoboards at each Infohaus.

First steps in Germany
School and Education
Working
Family
Life in Germany and Europe
Everyday Life

Interested in practising your German? You will find films and exercises here as well as games and apps for practising German. Watch our mini-series "Erste Wege in Deutschland" about Nevin, a new immigrant to Germany, and then answer some questions about the story. Our "Informationen suchen" exercises will give you some practice in looking up information on useful websites, and you can learn about obtaining credit in Germany for foreign degrees and educational qualifications on our "Virtuelle Entdeckungsreise" (Virtual Expedition).

Practise German

Do some German exercises on the iPad and use the headphones here to listen to audio files or videos.
