Habibi Kiosk Venice Program Information

*Wash your Art. Wash your City. A performative walk through the city by EXTRAGARBO

Wash your Art. Wash your City. is the first step in work-in-progress of the walking exhibition of urban art with the same title in Venice. Visitors will walk with one guide of Extragarbo through the district of Castello, transformed into a large construction site of ideas and creativity. The curatorial project - which will inaugurate in the near future - gathers the contributions of some of the most important international artists of the present day. They were invited to reflect on particular buildings, monuments and ephemeral urban elements in order to build new complex worlds in which also the common Venetians can find themselves in and change their point of view on their city.

From 7pm till 10pm, every 20 minutes. Habibi Kiosk Venice, Castello 5847.

*Through a Window: Exhibition by Visual Artist Sulafa Hijazi

A collection of digital artworks of Berlin-based Syrian artist Sulafa Hijazi. Initially its opening fell on the same day as the opening of the original Habibi Kiosk in Munich in December 2020. The artworks explore the different ways in which we interact with the constant and repeated flow of violent digital images and contents.

*Habibi Keks – a Live-Radioshow

Habibi Keks is a multiple-hour marathon community radio program, recorded live in public at the Habibi Kiosk – hitting the airwaves this time around from Venice. It is hosted by Rano and Booty who present music, community issues and global alliances. Every minute of each show is based on the culture of memory and the beauty of sharing on the task of stealing one's time for good

*What is the City? A research about the city and the people of Venice

What is the city of Venice like? Who owns the city? Who are its people: 60.000 Venetians vs. 13 billion Tourists a year? What moves the people living in a place like no other? With photographer Andrea Vagnoni we'll dive into the vibe of the city trying to extract a perspective.

In the heart of Sestiere Castello, where the Kiosk is temporarily located, people are being photographed and interviewed. The result is visual archive built up during the week. It consists of questions leading to answers and answers leading to more questions.

*JISR // Brücke

JISR means bridge in Arabic. Rooted in several musical genres, this unconventionally orchestrated musical project builds bridges between Arabian, African Gnawa, Jazz, Rock and classical music and takes the path of maximum musical variation and improvisation. The outcome is a homogeneous mix of cultures for sensitive ears.

Their current album TOO FAR AWAY, JISR // BRÜCKE is an ethnographic snapshot of the multicultural music scene, which breaks the boundaries between different musical genres and fills the maximum of musical imagination, unconventionally instrumented and with a great longing for strange sound worlds. JISR // BRÜCKE are hailing from Munich, Germany. In support of the show Habibi Kiosk's own DJ Booty Carrell will present vinyl records for those disenfranchised by nightlife.

Mohcine Ramdan: Percussion, Gembri, Vocals
Roman Bunka: Oud, Guitar
Vlad Cojocaru: Accordion
Gergely Lukacs: Trumpet
Matthias Gmelin: Drums

*Laboratory - right-wing spaces. The transnational dimensions of right-wing extremism

This year's Architecture Biennale and the Performing Architecture program series of the Goethe-Institut in Venice provide an opportunity to explore an architectural and socially critical theme: the transnational dimensions of right-wing extremism. For this purpose, we cordially invite you to discuss and philosophize with us. Right-wing structures do not only exist within national borders, but have an impact far beyond them. Parallel right-wing extremist milieus meet and network and continue to expand their influence, for example through the purchase of real estate. How does a right-wing axis or right-wing structures that are consolidated and established through real estate purchases come into being, and what happens to them? We will shed light on these and other aspects from different disciplines and perspective as science, art and architecture using the examples Italy, Germany and Brussel in the Laboratorio occupato Morion, Venice.

The laboratory - right spaces functions like a workshop of the mind and thereby enables the participants to discuss uninhibitedly, together at eye level. Certain sequences of the moderated live discussion will be broadcast unfiltered by the radio stations Papese and Radio Sherwood. Participants in the discussion are Robert Andreasch, Anna Clara Basilicò, Maddalena Gretel Cammeli, Sandra Chatterjee, CIBO, Arko Mukhaerjee, Paola Pisciotto, Kanishka Sarkar & Julian Volz. There will also be a contribution by Radio Papese from Florence and a live broadcast of the Habibi Goethe discussion event at the Habibi Kiosk in Munich. Journalist and moderator Nabila Abdel Aziz will speak with Lab participants in Venice and Havin Al-Sindy on the spot in Munich. Followed by two ritual performances, the smell of racism by Chatterjee, Arko Mukhaerjee and Kanishka Sarkar and the Live-Voiceperformance from artist and musician Marialuisa Capurso who thus concludes the lab day.

3 pm – 6 pm: Radio Goethe with Eleonora Sodini und Malin Klinsky
Program: 3 pm – 4 pm: Radio Papese // 4 pm – 5 pm: discussion // 5 pm – 6 pm: Live-performance and music by Marialuisa Capurso
7 pm – 8 pm: Habibi Goethe
8 pm – 8.30 pm: Smells Of Racism – an olfactory research
8.30 pm: Live-Voiceperformance by Marialuisa Capurso

*Habibi Goethe

A performative-international discussion series by and with the Goethe-Institute. This year's Architecture Biennale and the Performing Architecture program series of the Goethe-Institut in Venice provide an opportunity to explore an architectural and socially critical theme. Between Venice, Munich and Brussels a conversation is emerging that is dedicated to transnational right-wing spaces and networks. Between the three cities, a space for encounters is to be created in which one not only positions oneself critically vis-à-vis right-wing extremism and right-wing terror, but also illuminates the mechanisms and modes of action and reflects on possible implications and dangers.
