The Goethe-Institut jumps on the TV series bandwagon as it shows the multi-awarded TV crime thriller series In the Face of Crime ("Im Angesicht des Verbrechens") every Wednesday from Sept 30 to Dec 9 within its premises.

Directed by the celebrated German director Dominik Graf, In the Face of Crime is a ten-part series following the story of two policemen as they get involved in the dangerous world of the Russian mafia in Berlin.

The crime series is nothing if not German: multi-layered, complex and fast-paced. The series touches on the complexity of crime syndicates and society in general exemplified by the metropolis of Berlin. In the Face of Crime was first shown at the 60th Berlinale – the German counterpart of the Academy Awards – and has been described by critics as "ambitious", "intelligent" and "gripping".

In the Face of Crime is the newest series of the Wednesday Movie Nights, a permanent feature of the Goethe-Institut Philippinen. The screenings feature a wide range of German movies of various themes and issues. They are shown in German with English subtitles. The screenings will take place every Wednesday evening at 6:00 PM at the Goethe-Institut library. Admission is always free and the film showings are open to everybody – Viewers get free drinks and chips.
