One day on her way back from school...

“What is that?” She wonders and stops
in front of the bush.

“Who are you?
Why are you alone?
Where is your mum?”
asks Ndapandula.

"I better take you with me,"
decides Ndapandula.

"Look mum!
Isn't he cute? I found him on my way home."

"Oh, you poor little thing!
What happened to you?
Why are you so dirty?
And you must be hungry!"
says mum.

"I will call him Snowy,"
says Ndapandula

"Can I keep Snowy?"
begs Ndapandula.

"What if he belongs to someone else?" asks mum.

“Do you think Snowy’s
mum is looking for him?”
asks Ndapandula.

“I’m sure,” says mum.
“I would be worried if you
were missing...”

"I better help him find his mum... or his owner," says Ndapandula.

"This is a good idea. Let us go together," says mum.

"There is no one,"
says Ndapandula.

"No one is looking for Snowy.
You are right...,"
mum admits.

"Please Mum... can we keep Snowy?"
"Who will take care of Snowy?"
asked mum.

"I will take care and look after Snowy," Ndapandula replies.

"And I will help you look after Snowy," says mum.

Ndapandula finds a lonely
cub on her way back home from school.
What happens
if Ndapandula
does not find the owners?
Who will look after the puppy?
