

Information in accordance with the EU
EmpCo Directive 2024/825, “Empowering
Consumers for the Green Transition”
(EmpCO)

Transparency Note

The sustainability brochure and the DNK report were published before the EmpCo requirements came into force and therefore reflect the status of the sustainability strategy at the time of their publication. As a result, some of the wording used is no longer up to date.

The Goethe-Institut is currently further developing its sustainability strategy and is taking current regulatory requirements into account in this process. In this context, we no longer use terms such as “climate neutral.” This terminology can create misleading expectations and may oversimplify the complexity of the challenge. Instead, our focus is on the transparent communication of concrete climate action measures and on the continuous avoidance and reduction of our emissions.

www.goethe.de

GOETHE INSTITUT

Sprache. Kultur. Deutschland.