PRESS RELEASE -- for immediate release --

A Unique Approach to Learning German with EINSHOCH6

Writing lyrics, singing and performing on stage with the band EINSHOCH6 – and all of this using the German language!

Through this project, high school students from Indonesia have the chance to participate in workshops with the German musicians and also become a part of their concerts. For students, it will be a great and motivating experience that will enable them to have an encounter with Germany in their home country, as well as foster their interest in Germany and its language.

The musicians of the Munich-based band, who already have a lot of experience on an international level, will write song lyrics and melodize them together with young German language students.

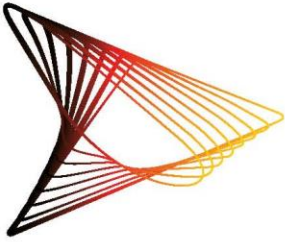

Presenting a unique combination of lyrical hip hop and inspiring classical music, EINSHOCH6 brings the German language closer to its audience in an entertaining and delightful way.

Together with Deutsche Welle, the band has developed a unique format: to learn German with the help of music. Through the web series "Band diary on tour", the process of learning the German language turns into an exciting experience addressing all senses as it helps the students to deepen their understanding of the language by listening to the music of EINSHOCH6.

"For us as musicians it's a gift to see that the combination of music and language is connecting people all around the globe," said Carl Amadeus Hiller, co-founder, leader and percussionist of EINSHOCH6. "There is nothing more a musician can wish for."

The peak of this project in Indonesia will be two concerts by EINSHOCH6 in Denpasar and Yogyakarta. The band will perform its German songs and also invite the workshop participants on stage to present "their own song."

For the majority of the band members, it is their first visit to Indonesia.

“We are very keen to interact with the people especially since we heard that music, rhythm, singing and dancing are of great importance in Indonesia,” Hiller said.

The students all come from schools of the “Schools: Partners for the Future” (PASCH) network. The initiative PASCH was launched by the German Foreign Ministry in February 2008 and currently oversees a worldwide network of over 1,500 partner schools.

This project is part of the German Season, an initiative of the Federal Foreign Office in Germany and organized by the Goethe-Institut Indonesien, the German Embassy Jakarta and EKONID.
